MANY ENLIST FOR STEVENS

Effort Being Made by Prominent People to Land him a Good Position

TWO OF BOARD FAVOR HIM

Former Mayor of Rushville Bids Fair to Become Supt. of the S. & S. Orphan's Home

An effort is being made by Hon. J. Marsh Stevens and his many friends in this and Decatur county to secure the place made vacant by the death of Prof. Andrew Graham, the late superintendent of the Sailor's and Soldiers' Orphans' Home near Knightstown.

As far as it is known, no one save Mr. Stevens is trying to secure the place and he bids fair to be successful. The committee in charge of the appointment is composed of Governor Hanly, Hugh Dougherty of Indianapolis, R. H. Dunkirk, of Greensfield, and Mrs. Cumbach, of Greensburg. Already many prominent and influential men throughout both a Rush and Decatur counties, as well as prominent leaders among the old soldiers of Indiana have enlisted their service in behalf of the Rushville man.

The only requirement, aside from a man's fitness and ability, is that he must be an ex-soldier. Mr. Stevens not only fought through the Civil war, but his father was a prominent officer and was shot and killed while in discharge of his duties, enlisting men for the service.

Mr. Stevens was mayor of this city for one term and has held several offices of trust with much credit. It is understood that two members of the board are very desirous of having Mr. Stevens appointed to fill the vacancy.

In a matter of this sort it is a very difficult task to find one who measures up to a standard set by such men as Prof. Graham for he was so admirably suited and fitted for the position that it has caused many men to say that he was born to carry on such a work. However, other men often fall in line with the policies pursued by such worthy predecessors and make equally as good officials. It is hoped that Mr. Stevens will be selected for the position for he is thoroughly capable and competent in every respect.

AN ODD FELLOW WORKS ODD GRAFT

Imposter Working Indiana Cities—Claims he Lost Hearing in an Accident

Odd Fellows are warned to look out for an imposter who is working this part of the State. The other day a man appeared at Huntington, claiming to be an Odd Fellow in hard luck. He seemed to have the proper credential, showing his receipt for dues paid and other evidence of a member in good standing. He gave his name as Hugh Munton and claimed to have come from Shelton, Wash., where he is interested in mining. He said that he had lost his hearing through an explosion and he carried an ear trumpet to assist in his conversations. At times he seemed to hear fairly well without the trumpet, but as soon as he noticed the mistake he would resort to the trumpet again.

He represented that he was on his way to New York, where he has a brother, with whom he wished to spend the balance of the winter. He asked that the lodge boys furnish him an overcoat and enough money to continue his journey to New York.

—County Superintendent W. O. Headlee was in Manilla on business this afternoon.

MOTORMAN FELT WARNING OF TWO BROKEN RAILS

When the First Car on the I. & C. Passed Through Morristown

The motorman on the first car passing over the I. & C. line Monday morning, felt the warning of two broken rails, says the Morristown Sun. One was at the Mouth curve west of town and the other a short distance down the track. Section Foreman Bishop and crew were notified and replaced the broken rails with new ones. The sudden change in the weather Sunday night is supposed to have caused the breakage.

LOCAL LADS GO TO SHELBYVILLE

Basket Ball Five Expect to have a Clean Walk Away Tonight

SHELBYVILLE ASKS AID

Calls for the Citizens to Turn Out to the Game to Root and Pay

The Rushville high school basketball team, which by the way, is one of the fastest high school teams in the State, goes to Shelbyville tonight for a game. Prof. M. R. McDaniel and Prof. W. A. Stockinger will accompany the team.

Rushville has had two easy wakkies with the Shelbyville lads and anticipate making it three straights with tonight's contest. In speaking of the game the Shelbyville Republican says in part:

"The game ought to bring a goodly part of the city's 'vital' athletic patrons. The city never has supported good, clean inter-school athletics of any kind, even the best of neighboring school teams have not made enough for the paying of their expenses except on a few occasions. The high school does not give the support that is to be expected of it. Too many people seem to think that the high school is an enclave, an institution in the community entirely independent of the community's support; but they are under an hallucination. The school is made up of what should be the city's future business men and wide-awake citizens, but if they are given no encouragement in the school what can be expected of them when they leave it—nothing but dead, lifeless machines.

"Now the city should turn out Friday evening and give the local team good support financially and vocally; money makes the world move and good hearty rooting has as much to do with a game of basketball as the drum corps and band does in an army during a fight. The best of order will be maintained. Make Rushville feel that she is welcome and that she came over for something."

AGED WOMAN HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Mrs. Ben L. Smith Fell While Trying to Board Moving Passenger Train

Mrs. Ben L. Smith had a narrow escape from serious injury or perhaps instant death at the O., H. & D. station today, when she fell while attempting to board a passenger train at noon. She fell to the ground but fortunately fell backwards away from the moving train.

WILL OBSERVE FEAST SUNDAY

Roman Catholics will Celebrate Candlemas or Feast of Purification

AN IMPORTANT EVENT

Candles will be Blessed and Distributed Among the Faithful—Why it is Commemorated

The Roman Catholics of Rushville, with members of that body all over the world, will celebrate Candlemas day, next Sunday. It is the occasion for the blessing and distribution of candles to the laity, which dates back to the time when the early Christians were obliged to worship by candle-light in the catacomb.

It is also known as the Feast of the Purification, in honor of the purification of the Holy Virgin, mother of God, in the temple at Jerusalem, and the presentation of Jesus on the same occasion according to the law of Moses.

Before High mass next Sunday, Rev. Walter J. Cronin will bless candles for the whole year and a procession will follow with blessed candles in the hands of the faithful in memory of the divine light which Christ illuminated the whole church at His presentation when the aged and Holy Simeon called Him, "a light to the revelation of the Gentiles and the glory of His people Israel." (Luke 1:32).

At Rome on this day the Pope officiates every year in the chapel of the Quirinal. When he has blessed the candles he distributes them with his own hand among those in the chapel, each of whom, going singly up to him, kneels to receive it. The cardinals go first, then follow bishops, canons, priors, abbots, priests, down to the sacristans and lowest officers of the church.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN FAR EAST

Mrs. R. A. Martin, nee Windler Succumbs to Ravages of the White Plague

Frank Windler received a telegram this morning from Washington D. C. to the effect that his sister, Mrs. R. A. Martin, died at that place at 1:30 o'clock this morning. She was formerly Emma Windler, of this city, and leaves a host of mourning friends here. Deceased was forty years of age and was married sixteen years ago. Four children, three girls and one boy survive her.

She had been a sufferer from tuberculosis for some time, and her mother, Mrs. Margaret C. Windler, has been at her home for eighteen months attending her.

Frank Windler left for Washington this forenoon. The funeral services will occur Sunday afternoon. Interments at Arlington Heights.

RUSH COUNTY FARMER IS HEAVILY INVOLVED

In the report of the cases filed in the United States circuit court yesterday the following appears: "John O. Nelson, a Rush county farmer, declares that he is involved to the extent of $4,821.65, with assets of only $507.50, and petitions that he be adjudged bankrupt."

—S. B. Clifton returned to Tipton today after a visit with his brother, S. F. Clifton and family, in West Ninth street.

FARMER PROVED HIMSELF A HERO

Held Frightened Team of Horses Until Lines cut Deep into Hands

TEAM BECAME UNHITCHED

From Wagon But Stopped Near Main Street with Little Damage Done

The pedestrians on Second street were greatly excited at the noon hour when a team of large Norman horses hitched to a farm wagon, ran away.

The horses became frightened near Harrison street and gave a wild dash, completely tearing the swingle tree and double tree loose, which in turn fell down on their hock joints.

When these struck the heels of the already frightened animals they began kicking and it seemed that the farmer would be thrown from the wagon, but he heroically held them with one hand, while he waved the people back who were trying to stop the team.

With a Herculean effort he brought them to a standstill near the corner of Main and Second street, with very little damage done to the wagon, although his hand was bleeding, almost cut to the bone because of the desperate grip he had on the lines.

THE $5.00 CONTEST

The selection of the best answer to the $5.00 Prize Advertisement Contest will be made this evening and the prize letter will be published tomorrow. A great interest was manifested in the contest which shows that the reading public studies the worth of an advertisement for more than the mere article advertised. They take into consideration how the proposition is presented, the time taken to grasp and fully appreciate the value of it and at the same time this ad gives detailed argument, decisive and to the point.

Reading the advertisements is a part of every paper patron and this fact was never more fully appreciated than it is today. The world moves by advertising. Every sane person will acknowledge that the Printers' Ink is the mightiest influence of the age, and as oratory in politics and on other questions has been displaced by the great amount of argument to be found in the daily newspapers, so has the hand bill, cheap pamphlet and other catch-penny modes of advertising been displaced by the big audiences commanded by the newspapers, audiences that are attentive and who "sit up and listen." Perhaps the busy man will only stop occasionally to glance at the advertising columns of a publication, but ad's are built to catch those casual glances. It remains for the good housewife to sit down and study out the question, and in the main, she is the one whom four-fifths of the advertising is directed towards. They read advertisements of things they never even hope to possess.

Railroad companies spend thousands of dollars every year publishing time tables. As a matter of course, one will not sit down and read them for entertainment, but only when they wish to learn the time of the departure or arrival of a train.

The same applies to the average busy American who rushes through life. Should he wish to buy an article he knows where to turn for his information: the casual glance he has taken is indelibly printed on his mind.

But after all, it is a hard matter to measure the unbounded influence of advertising. There is abundant argument however in the fact that all the leading and successful firms in the country use the newspaper columns, and the brainiest merchants in the country will tell you that they owe their success to judicious newspaper advertising.

An advertisement is an appeal, an invitation as well as a source of information to the reader.

SPARKS TO HAVE A SPRING REST

Rare Occurrence will Break Monotony of Court Life

CAN HELP CLEAN HOUSE

October Term will Consist of But Five Weeks—A Study of the Court Calendar

The week of April 20th, Shelby and Rush counties will enjoy a spring vacation, a rare occurrence. It will be the first time in Judge Sparks' regime and occurred but once while Judge Morris was on the bench. The usual vacation for the court lasts from the close of the May term until September.

The statutes regulating the beginning of court terms in Shelby and Rush counties state the March term in Shelby county must begin on the second Monday in March and continue for six weeks. The April term for the Rush circuit court begins on the fourth Monday in April. In 1907 the Rush term of court commenced April 23d. This year the March term of the Shelby court closes April 18th, and the fourth Monday does not fall until the twenty-seventh, giving Judge Sparks a vacation of one week.

The September term begins September 7th, this year in Rush county, continuing for five weeks. The term begins on the first Monday in September hence this throws the Rush county September term of court one week later. The October term should begin the first Monday in October in Shelbyville, but when the dates conflict Shelby county must out its term short one week, hence the October term of court will be but five weeks in length this year. These are occurrences that molest the court calendar once in many years.

DECEMBER CROP OF BABIES GOOD

Eighteen Infants Born in Rush County During the Last Month

SOME ARE NOT REPORTED

This List Does Not Include Rushville and Carthage—No Race Suicide Here

Race suicide has no place in Rush county, and while President Roosevelt claims the credit for the large number of children born in this country, according to the philosophy of an old German, we can feel proud of the work of the Mr. Stork, no matter where the credit goes. According to statistics compiled for the month of December there was one baby born every thirty-two hours in this county. This amount does not include Rushville or Carthage, as reports of these two places are kept separate from the county board of health statistics. Many of the little pink darlings came as Christmas gifts, bringing added joy at a joyful occasion.

The following children were born during the month of December as reported to Dr. Frank Green, secretary of the Rush County Board of Health:

Dec. 2, born to Mr. and Mrs. George Nordloh, Martha Louise; Dec. 3, to Benjamin F. Kiplinger and wife, Stephen Daniel; Dec. 2, Howard G. Jones and wife, Howard G.; Dec. 6, Wesley York, and wife, Florence Ellen; Dec. 8, to O. O. Williams and wife, Thelma E.; Dec. 15, to George Gahemer and wife, Howard E.; Dec. 15, Julius Meyer and wife, Julius W.; Dec. 15, Albert Benson and wife, Bayun; Dec. 18, Ed. Laughlin and wife, Bertha L.; Dec. 15, Jesse Atkins and wife, Ruth; Dec. 12, Walter Patton and wife, Elsie M.; Dec. 15, John Blackburn and wife, John; Dec. 5, John Ellerman and wife, John; Dec. 11, Orrie D. Green and wife, unnamed; Dec. 21, Marion Albert and wife, Minnie; Dec. 2, Orval Headlee and wife, Howell G.; Dec. 13, Frederick F. McFatrige and wife, James H.; Dec. 27, Harman Rolfes, and wife, Mary Mildred.

Some of the children born before December were not reported so as to get into the December report.

The following were not reported last month: Nov. 30, to Leonard Alsop and wife, Alta; Nov. 2, Charles A. Cartwright and wife, James A.; Nov. 15, Emory B. Schnobee and wife, Mary J.; Oct. 26, Herbert Dewitt and wife, Goldie R.; Nov. 11, Everett J. Worth and wife, unnamed; Oct. 4, Alonzo S. Rhodes and wife, unnamed; Nov. 8, Tevis Hunt and wife, unnamed; Nov. 28, Alva Hungerford and wife, Herbert.

Should there have been any children born in the county and not reported, parents will please report their names and date of birth to Dr. Frank Green.

Glen Reese, who was married last week was around shaking hands with his friends this forenoon, bidding them goodbye. When asked what was the occasion for such actions he replied that his wife had just phoned him dinner was ready: it was their first meal and Mrs. Newlywed was going to try and outdo "like mother used to bake."

State* Board of Health Starts Crusade Against Dirty Dairies.

UNDER NEW CONDITIONS

Since Old Rules Were Adopted Conditions Have Developed Requiring More Stringent Measures.

Fraudulent Adulteration Is Not the Worst Evil of Dishonest Dairy Business.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—New rules just adopted by the state board of health to regulate the dairy business in Indiana are now being promulgated by the board. These rules cover a number of conditions in this business which have developed since the old rules were adopted. The rules are in line with the law which took effect March 4, 1907, which prohibits the sale of milk produced by sick or diseased cows, or collected, kept or handled under conditions which are not sanitary and clean.

"The necessity for such restrictions," said H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, "are apparent to all who are familiar with dairy conditions in Indiana. Few dairies are conducted in a sanitary manner, and too frequently the health of the herds is regarded only as affecting the quantity of milk and not the quality. A properly organized milk control cannot be restricted to stopping fraudulent adulteration. The chief object should be to prevent milk containing injurious bacteria from reaching the consumer and so to control its production and distribution that there will be no opportunity for bacteria to enter."

OPPOSE CONFERENCE

Illinois Mine Operators Demand Adjustment of "Inequalities."

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—The protest of Illinois against a continuance of the old mining and wage conditions in the soft coal fields of the country landed in Indianapolis in three special Pullmans. Seventy big coal operators and representatives of the great coal interests in Illinois joined the Ohio, western Pennsylvania and Indiana operators.

They lost no time in letting the operators of the other states and also the miners know that they "demanded relief from the unequal conditions" under which they are now operating. Among these "unequal conditions" is the single mining standard fastened on them which compels them to mine only on the screen coal basis; another important one is their assertion that on machine-mined coal the Indiana operators have in the markets 3 cents a ton advantage over them and that in western Pennsylvania and Ohio this advantage is increased to 8 cents.

There also are other inequalities, they assert, that will have to be adjusted before they can or will join with the operators and miners in the issuance of a call for a joint wage conference for the central competitive field, which is composed of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

George W. Traer, president of the Illinois operators' organization, said that the present conditions were disadvantageous to Illinois operators, and that they could not join in a call that would work to a continuance of this disadvantage.

Large Salvage Assured.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—It was learned when men entered and examined the unburned portions of the Coburn storage and warehouse building, that there will be a large salvage. Marton county's voting machines, 140 in number and costing $98,000, were saved, although it was thought some of them were damaged by water. Estimates are now made that the entire loss in the fire will not be much more than half a million dollars.

Followed Tragic Example.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Jan. 31.—James Edward Riley, twenty-seven years old, a farmer of Logan township, committed suicide by hanging himself in his barn. It is thought Riley brooded over a suicide which he discovered two years ago, that of the Rev. T. W. Petre, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Bright, who hanged himself in the same barn and from the same beam to which Riley attached himself. Riley was unmarried.

Wanted No Trouble or Delay.

Indianapolis, Jan. 31.—Seneca B. Parsons of South Bend, shot and killed himself in the Edward hotel, where he had been rooming. Melancholia and financial troubles are responsible for the act. A note was left addressed to the coroner. It said: "Bury me just as I am in the potters' field (a pauper's grave) with the least trouble, expense or delay."

Fatally Shot His Son.

Jasper, Ind., Jan. 31.—In a dispute over a sick horse Philip Kastner, aged sixty-two, shot and fatally wounded his son George, aged thirty-two. The father owned the horse and claimed his son had poisoned the animal. Kastner is in jail here, unable to give bond.

A PRACTICAL LESSON

Indians Will Not Countenance Murderers in Their Tribes.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The first murder of a white man for nearly thirty years on the Mescalero Apache Indian reservation in New Mexico has been reported to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Leupp. On Jan. 12, J. A. McLane, a cowboy, traced several head of stray cattle to the reservation. He was directed by several Indians to where the cattle had been seen, went after them, and later his dead body and his horse were found. McLane had been shot through the head. Nearby was a dead steer, which had been quartered. A council of Indians was called by Agent Carroll and twenty-five Indians took up the trail which led to the tepee of an Indian named Da Ga In Ka. The tepee was deserted, the Indian having forced his squaw to accompany him. For three days the trail was followed toward Mexico. The Indian's horse had been killed, the horse's hide cut up and bound on the feet of the fugitives, who at times traversed barren rocks, to obliterate the trail. Governor Curry finally sent police and bloodhounds after the fugitives, but arrived just after the murderer had been riddled with bullets by his own people. He had been located on a high bluff of the Sacramento mountains. No one else was injured.

ECHO OF DOWNE TRIAL

Dr. Buckley Charged With Disloyalty and Slander.

New York, Jan. 31.—Charges of disloyalty and slander preferred against the Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate and one of the best-known Methodist Episcopal leaders in this country, were considered by a committee of nine clergymen of the New York east conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in Brooklyn. The charges were made by the Rev. Dr. G. A. Cook of Brandon, Vt. It is understood that the charges are based on editorials in the Christian Advocate. It was Dr. Cook who preferred the charges against Prof. Borgen A. Downe of Boston university, which resulted in the latter's trial for alleged heresy a few years ago.

Dr. Buckley in defending Prof. Downe accused Dr. Cook of having made public the charges against the professor. The charges now preferred against Dr. Buckley are supposed to have grown out of the Downe trial.

Deed of Unnatural Father.

Chicago, January 31.—William H. Meutsch, a carriage maker at 419 Armistage avenue, shot and killed one of his daughters, five years old, and fatally wounded two younger children. According to the police, Meutsch had recently quarreled with his wife several times because of the children. The murderer is believed by the police to be of unsound mind. He confessed after his arrest that he intended to kill another daughter, eighteen years old, who was absent when the tragedy occurred.

Blow to the Marine Band.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The house committee on labor has agreed to report favorably the bill introduced by Representative Bartholdt of Missouri, prohibiting enlisted men of the army, navy and marine corps from engaging in any occupation in competition with civilian artisans or craftsmen. The bill is intended to stop the practice of members of the Marine band playing at private entertainments.

Gotham Needs the Money.

New York, Jan. 31.—Comptroller Metz announces that on Feb. 14 or 15 he will sell $50,000,000 worth of New York city bonds, bearing interest of 4 1/2 per cent. Of the issue $45,000,000 will be fifty-year bonds, and $5,000,000 ten-year assessment bonds. The money will be used for public improvements. This will be the largest sale of bonds ever made by the city at one offering.

Entire Village Destroyed.

THE OTHER SIDE

In Which It Appears That Sanderson Didn't Charge the Limit.

IMPOSING POSSIBILITIES

Under That Lovely "Per-Foot" Contract There Was Apparently No End to Possible Charges.

That These Were Not Always Taken Advantage of Is a Point Made by Defense.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—That John H. Sanderson did not really charge as much for furniture supplied for the new capitol as he was entitled to under his contract will be the chief defense in the conspiracy suit against Sanderson, Snyder, Mathues and Shumaker, now on trial here. This was developed by the cross-examination of Stanford B. Lewis, who was Architect Joseph M. Huston's active assistant during the construction and equipment of the capitol. Huston was indicted jointly with Sanderson and his co-defendants, but was granted a separate trial with the consent of the commonwealth. Lewis was called by the commonwealth to identify Huston's blue-prints for sofas, tables and clothes-trees, and for which Sanderson was paid by the state at the rate of $18.40 "per foot." Lewis was then forced by the defense to measure each of the articles exhibited. A sofa six feet long was shown to contain fifty-six of the kind of feet on which Sanderson based his charges. A table with a top 3 1/2 by 2 1/2 feet contains 17 1/2 of the same units. One of the clothes-trees eighteen inches at the base, with a three-inch shaft, six feet high, has seven feet. When it was established that Sanderson had not charged all he claims he is entitled to, the attorneys for the state took up the line and ran it out. They showed that a clothes-tree which Sanderson contracted to furnish for $5.55, and for which he was paid by the state $27.40, could have been billed at $147.50, according to the theory of the defense. They also showed that Sanderson charged only 19 1/2 feet for the 56-foot sofa and at the rate of $18.40 "per foot," or $386.40 instead of $1,030.40 to which he was entitled, had he charged for it at this rate.

George C. Keim, who was a book-keeper in the department of grounds and buildings under Shumaker, testified that in March, 1906, Shumaker gave him twenty Sanderson bills which Shumaker said had been approved by Snyder, to enter in his journals. Before Keim had time to enter the bills, Snyder took them away and Keim never saw them until they were produced in court.

The contention of the commonwealth is that the withdrawal of these bills is part of the chain of evidence of the conspiracy by which the state was defrauded by the defendants.

Former Governor Pennypacker, who was president of the board of grounds and buildings while the capitol was being finished, will not be called by the commonwealth. Mr. Pennypacker has been subpoenaed for the defense, and if he is called as a witness he will be cross-examined by the commonwealth.

Fearful Plight of Sailors.

Honolulu, Jan. 31.—The survivors of the American ship Eclipse, which founded on Jan. 11 while bound from Newcastle, Australia, to San Francisco, have arrived here and were sent to a hospital. All are in a fearful condition from exposure, exhaustion and thirst. One boat capsized, crowding sixteen men into the only other boat, in which they were sixteen days at sea before reaching Hana Maui. During this time Isador Modoe, Stanley Ennis and Peter Christiansen died.

Prof. W. O. Bohannon Reindicted.

Bloomington, Ind., January 31.—The grand jury has returned an indictment against Prof. W. O. Bohannon, alleging that he assaulted Miss Nettie Northcott, one of his pupils, while he was teaching in the high school, this city. This is the second investigation of the case. Bohannon is now at his home at Evansville, but he will return when called.

Keep The Kidneys Well

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Rushville People Know How to Save it

Many Rushville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all the diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Rushville citizen who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy.

Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, 916 N. Sexton Street, Rushville Ind. says: "I gave Doan's Kidney Pills to my little boy. His kidneys were weak and he could not refrain from bed wetting. This trouble clung to him for some time and I was afraid it would not be removed, as our doctor had not succeeded in checking it. He seemed delicate and craved nothing but sweets. He had a bad complexion and had every symptom of unhealthy kidneys. I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured many children of bed wetting and I procured them at F. B. Johnson & Company's drug store. They soon checked the trouble. He has a better appetite now, the color in his face is returning and there is a general improvement in his condition."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BACK TO ITS OWN

Tattered Flag of the Old Chesapeake to Be Returned to America.

THE PRICE WAS NO OBJECT

When This Interesting Relic Was Put Up at Auction in London American Gold Was In Evidence.

Flag Seized by the British Nearly a Hundred Years Ago Has Found New Owners.

London, Jan. 31.—The flag of the American man-of-war Chesapeake and the Balacava bugle, two of the most valuable war relics of a collection of antiquities that belonged to the late T. G. Middlebrook, were secured yesterday at the auction sale of the collection for American buyers. The Chesapeake flag was captured in the fight with the British ship Shannon in 1813, and there was good bidding for the faded and torn piece of bunting, the authenticity of which is vouched for in a written history of American warships since Midshipman Grundy of the royal navy came into possession of the trophy nearly a century ago. The flag was sold for $4,250 to a London art dealer, who also purchased the bugle for $1,500. It was upon this instrument that the order to the famous Light Brigade to charge at the battle of Balacava was sounded. The dealer admitted that these highly interesting curios had been purchased by him for different parties in America, but more than this he would not say. There was a rumor that he was acting for Cornelius Vanderbilt, but there was subsequent denial and London does not yet know into whose hands the flag and bugle have fallen.

The auction of the Middlebrook curios has been going on for two days and has attracted much attention. When the time came to put up the flag the auction room was so crowded that many persons were unable to gain admission. The man who finally received the flag started the bidding at $100, but he was soon challenged by other dealers, among whom was a representative of an American who said he wanted the flag for the American Navy League. The price was soon run up to $1,500. Here all the other bidders dropped out and the contest was carried on by two dealers, both of whom were said to represent Americans. There was a long pause when the price had reached $2,400, but then on bids of $250 at a time it was rapidly forced up to $4,250, at which figure the hammer fell. As soon as the sale was made there were loud calls in the auction room of "Does it remain in England?" This was answered in the affirmative by someone who did not know that the English dealer was acting for an American, and there was at once an outburst of loud cheering. This was quickly quieted, however, when the purchaser corrected the mistake. It has been understood here that the American government had intended making a bid for the Chesapeake's flag, but it was later decided from Washington to leave the matter of the purchase in the hands of patriotic societies or private citizens.

The bidding for the Balacava bugle was not so brisk, and the price obtained is less than half what Mr. Middlebrook paid for this relic ten years ago.

GUARDS NOT NEEDED

Congress Considers Its "Reputation and Honor" Quite Safe.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The urgent deficiency appropriation bill was passed by the house. The total amount carried by it is $23,664,450, or $410,000 less than as reported by the committee. The largest single reduction was that of $300,000 in the clothing fund of the army. Included in the original bill was a provision for the appointment of thirty-four additional policemen for the new house office building. Chairman Tawney urged the provision because of the necessity for protecting such costly government property and of guarding the reputation and honor of the members. Mr. Mann of Illinois opposed the provision, and it was stricken out on a point of order after considerable discussion. The senate held a short session, during which Senator Aldrich reported his banking bill from the committee on finance, which he announced he would call up for consideration on Monday, Feb. 10.

Olden Mystery Revealed.

Burlington, Ia., Jan. 31.—In a letter to the Hawkeye, Dr. George P. Neal, aged eighty, a well-known physician of Fort Madison, Ia., states that Wm. Pickard, who murdered Wm. Teets, at Lettsville, Ia., in 1879, was lynched and secretly buried the night following his crime. Pickard has always been considered a fugitive from justice. Two weeks ago Nicholas Pickard, supposed to be the murderer, was arrested in Texas and brought to Iowa to answer for the crime. He was released when identification failed.

Vincennes, Ind., Jan. 31.—Roderick Patterson, miller, fifty years old, committed suicide by swallowing poison. He was seriously ill of consumption, and was unable to pay his house rent. He had been ordered to vacate or else be moved out.

NOW WITH JURY

Fate of Harry Thaw May Soon Be Determined.

New York, Jan. 31.—The case of the people against Harry Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, is now in the hands of the twelve men who have patiently listened to the evidence in the second hearing of this cause. Justice Dowling began his charge to the jury as soon as court convened at 10:30 this morning.

William Travers Jerome, representative of the people, made a masterly plea that justice be done in the case of Thaw. Vindictiveness, sneers, insinuations, all were lacking; logic, analysis and a calm consideration of the facts were their substitute. It was no blind appeal for the vengeance of the law that Mr. Jerome addressed to the jury, but ever and always there was the note of fairness, even at times of mercy.

The time that has elapsed since the first trial had wrought a wonderful and startling change in the prosecutor. No longer attempting to shield the name of Stanford White, he accepted the story told by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw as true, all but the drugging, and he made the frank confession to the jury that the velvet swings and mirrored rooms of the studio houses described by the girl were indeed a miserable reality. No longer attacking Evelyn Thaw as a skilled adventuress, Mr. Jerome pleaded for the girl because she never had had a chance for any of the higher, cleaner, sweeter things of life. The climax came, however, when Mr. Jerome denounced both Thaw and White in one breath and classed them as "two degenerates quarrelling over a woman." And the woman, the prosecutor declared, knew no more—had been taught no more by the world—than to play one against the other, until, in jealous rage, in blind hatred, in vengeance of "an undeniably gross wrong done to his wife," Harry Thaw shot and killed the architect.

The district attorney turned a willing ear to the testimony of insanity placed before the jury and emphasized it in a number of instances. He admitted that Thaw had always been physically weak and that at times his mind had been unstrung. And while at no point was there the direct offer of compromise in the prosecutor's speech, there was notably an indication that he would not feel that justice had been misdirected if a verdict of some lesser guilt than murder in the first degree should be the culmination of the jury's deliberations.

In conclusion of his long address, Mr. Jerome denounced Harry Thaw in bitter terms as "a coward skulking behind the petticoats of his wife, attempting to shield and save his worthless life behind her shame." Twice in his sanity, declared the prosecutor, "he has sat in this courtroom and had her bare her shame in all its pitiful nakedness to all the world. Is such a man worthy of even the slightest consideration at your hands?"

Nine Miners Lose Lives.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 31.—Nine miners met sudden death in the New River colliery known to miners as the Lower Boone mine, forty-five miles from here, near Hawks Nest, in an explosion that partly wrecked the mine. It is stated that twenty-five men were in the mine at the time of the explosion and that eight of the nine dead were instantly killed. The others escaped with only slight injuries.

Chile Is Going Some.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 31.—The census of the republic of Chile, which has just been completed, shows a population of 3,250,000. The population in 1903 was given as 3,205,992.

New Chapter in Druce Case.

London, Jan. 31.—The Daily Chronicle prints an article this morning purporting to be an exposure of the Druce trouble and alleging that it has proofs that when George H. Druce originally made claims for the title and estate of the late Duke of Portland that a descendant of an elder branch, with prior claims to his own, was living and that he entered upon an agreement with this person to keep in the background.

Burned While Making Taffy.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Jan. 31.—Pauline Huffman, eight years old, and Miss Freda Ulrich, fourteen, were severely burned by a gasoline explosion at the home of Frederick Ulrich, clerk of Glendale, a suburb of this city. The girls were making taffy, with the Huffman girl stirring the candy. Her screams brought Miss Ulrich to the rescue and both were badly burned.

Indiana Youth Injured.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 31.—Harry Russell, twenty years old, of Fairland, Ind., was seriously injured by stepping from a Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway train just before it stopped. Robert Martin, also an Indiana youth, who was with Russell, also stepped from the train as it approached the junction, and disappeared.

CHARLES S. VAIL, Associate City Editor

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, JANUARY 31, 1908

Remember the district convention at Cambridge City next Tuesday.

Congressman Charles McGarvin, of Chicago has struck the right "lead" when he urges a bill to tax the outgoing fortunes of American girls who marry foreign noblemen. They should not alone be taxed, but they should be taxed heavily. The fortunes will be dissipated anyway by counts no account, besides it is about time that this country protect its girls from these European fortune hunters, who in nine cases out of ten don't even treat their American wives decently after securing their money.

Postmaster-General Meyer is urging a parcel post law which he claims is so constructed as to prevent the use of rural routes by large mail order houses, and thinks his recommendation for the extension of the parcel post would greatly benefit the retail merchant and his patrons. It is the general consensus of opinion that such a law while enacted in good faith and primarily of great benefit would ultimately lead to a further extension of the parcel privilege as to include the larger cities. This is but history repeated.

That those mail order houses in the large cities are not doing a legitimate business, open and above board, is proven by their present advertising methods since the United States court has been getting after them. Instead of advertising under the regular name of the firm or company, the individual names of the president or department heads are used. A word to the wise ought to be sufficient. Trade with your home merchant, with whom you are acquainted and who carries a superior line of goods at a fair profit. It will pay in the long run.

The national Republican convention, that meets in Chicago, June 16th, will be the most interesting one held by the G. O. P. since 1888, when Harrison was nominated. It is the first time since then that there has been any real contest for the nomination and it is significant that Indiana had the winner in 1888, and will in all probability furnish the winner in 1908. --Greensburg Standard.

Careful inquiry and investigation reveals the fact that the number of unemployed and impoverished working people has been grossly exaggerated. In some localities where from 4000 to 5000 wage workers have been reported as being without work and destitute, the actual number thus unfortunately situated has dwindled down to just about that many hundreds.

A new organization was recently launched at Omaha, Neb., called "The Bryan Volunteers," which has for its purpose the financing of Bryan's presidential campaign by popular contribution in every election precinct in the United States through county branches of the parent association. The scheme is credited to Mr. Bryan's fertile brain and is but another illustration of his well known business sagacity to get all he can and keep all he gets, permitting "Mr. Jones" or any other dupe to pay the freight. It is a well-known fact that while Bryan has been defeated twice for presidency, he has at the same time amassed a fortune. Under the same conditions other presidential aspirants have lost fortunes.

The New Surgery.

[In a short time, according to a prominent surgeon, it will be a common thing to transplant with success the vital organs of lower animals to a man's body.] Bill Smith was in a railroad wreck—the cars were ground to matches—And when the surgeons got to him Bill Smith was mostly patches. But soon with pair of rabbit's ears Bill Smith was keenly barking. While lungs from out a setter dog had set Bill Smith a-barking.

The doctors solved most capably the missing stomach question. Two stomachs from a mulley cow built up Bill Smith's digestion. And when a horse contributed (with no thanks to the giver) Bill Smith would not have taken back his ancient faulty liver.

A pair of cat's eyes tickled Bill and fixed him up completely. And he could see in blackest night and dodged his light bills neatly. And when folks asked if he was pleased with all his borrowed tackle Bill Smith would just throw back his head and give an old hen's cackle! --Denver Republican.

It has been calculated that the value of the grain alcohol contained in the waste cornstalks of this country amount annually to $7,650,000,000—seven billion, not million, dollars—and the value of the stover, after the alcohol is extracted amounts to another six billion dollars, making a total value of what we have been counting a waste and almost a nuisance of $13,650,000,000. That is a pretty big by-product for our American farms amounting for an income of about $100 a day for every man, woman and child now on our farms. And the most astonishing part is that notwithstanding the "campaign of education" which has been carried on by the agricultural department and the newspapers in that direction, the farmers keep right on wasting valuable material.

INDIANA POLITICS

BY ROBERT G. TUCKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—A conflict between the state and federal authorities may delay the erection of the proposed $25,000 monument on the Tippecanoe battlefield. The legislative last session appropriated $12,500 for that purpose, with the understanding that the federal government would give a like amount. The state law provided for the appointment of a commission of three by the governor to have charge of the work of building the monument. The enactment by congress provides that the state must turn its money over to the war department, which shall erect the monument, after which the state shall assume charge of it. Governor Hanly has appointed a commission, but he said that the work will not proceed until the war department changes its attitude or until the state enacts a new law on the subject.

A boom for John W. Kern of Indianapolis for nomination for vice president may be launched here Feb. 17, when the Indiana Democratic club will give a banquet in honor of William Jennings Bryan. Mr. Kern will be toastmaster on that occasion, and it is not unlikely that some of the speakers will spring his name as a prospective candidate for second place on the ticket. Kern has been a staunch admirer of Bryan since his nomination in 1896, and led the state ticket in 1900 and 1904 for governor. It is known by the Indiana Democratic leaders that Bryan not only holds Kern in high esteem, but that he is very anxious to strengthen himself in this state. While Bryan is not said to have indicated plainly that he desires the nomination of Kern, the latter's followers feel that the "peerless one" would take very kindly to his candidacy. Kern is one of the leading attorneys of Indiana and is regarded as one of the greatest campaigners in the history of the Democratic party in Indiana.

The meeting of the Democratic state committee called for Friday has been postponed until Feb. 6, when the Democratic Editorial association will have its mid-winter convention in Indianapolis. The plan is to have the committee meet at such a time as will permit the editors to give their views regarding a date for the state convention. Several party leaders came here yesterday, not knowing that the date for the meeting had been changed. There was considerable discussion among them as to a suitable time for holding the state convention. S. Paul Poynter, editor of a Democratic paper at Sullivan, said that he understands there is a movement to have the convention held before the Republican ticket is nominated, April 2, but he declared that there would be a fight against that proposition.

A movement has been inaugurated by the Indiana Manufacturers' and Shippers' association for the organization of a national congress of such associations. Letters have been sent to governors of every state asking whether or not they have a railroad commission and for the names of the officers of the shippers' and manufacturers' societies. As soon as the various states are heard from, a call will be issued for a general meeting to be held here to form a congress for the purpose of urging the enactment of national legislation for the benefit of shippers and manufacturers.

We Lead In Material Products, Not In Brains.

By OWEN WISTER, Novelist and Historian.

NOT many days ago the report of the secretary of agriculture for 1907 came into my hands. The report tells us that the grand total of our crop for 1907, in spite of a hard winter, a hot March, a cold April and May and a labor famine, in spite of almost every hindrance that could exist, exceeds by nearly $1,000,000 the greatest crop we have ever had before, giving us a balance of trade of $444,000,000. From this native harvest of the SOIL, from this huge output of vital force, we turn to the native HARVEST OF THE INTELLECT. How much food of that sort did we export in 1907? Which way is the balance of trade there?

Who sits teaching something at Harvard, at Johns Hopkins, at Yale, at Columbia, at Princeton, at Pennsylvania and at other of our colleges and universities? Who, in short, sits in some American academic chair to whose feet the students of the whole world come as to the SUPREME AUTHORITY in his chosen subject?

NO AMERICAN UNIVERSITY POSSESSES ONE SINGLE TEACHER OF UNDISPUTED PRE-EMINENCE. BALANCE OF TRADE IN FOOD PRODUCTS FOR THE YEAR 1907, $444,000,000; BALANCE OF TRADE IN SCHOLARSHIP, MINUS 100 PER CENT. BY SCHOLARSHIP IS MEANT PROFICIENCY IN ALL KNOWLEDGE ACQUIRED BY STUDY.

Let us contemplate this for awhile. Let us draw from it no humiliation, no sourness, no despondency, to wet blanket our faith. Let us draw from it only a clear lesson and a CHALLENGE TO OUR PATRIOTISM. We must not sodd. But neither must we give ourselves fair words.

IN THE DOMAIN OF INTELLECTUAL ACQUISITION AND PRODUCTIVENESS WE ARE NOT A FIRST RATE COUNTRY.

Real American Aristocracy.

It was through the Declaration of Independence that we Americans acknowledge the eternal inequality of man, for by it we abolished a cut and dried aristocracy. We had seen little men artificially held up in high places and great men artificially held down in low places, and our own justice loving hearts abhorred this violence to human nature. "Let the best man win." That is America's word. That is true democracy. And true democracy and true aristocracy are one and the same thing. --Owen Wister in "The Virginian."

LOCAL NEWS

Pleasant A. Newhouse has announced himself as candidate for county commissioner from the Middle district, subject to the Republican nominating convention.

On last Wednesday a jolly crowd of "bachelor girls" having accepted the invitation of Mrs. Will B. Edings, drove to her home to partake of her hospitality, and to say that they were royally entertained would be putting it very mildly. At high noon a bountiful four-course dinner was served and the afternoon was spent in popular games. Late in the afternoon the girls departed, resolved to neither save shoe leather or horse flesh in a last desperate effort to secure a partner for life. One of the member's reports.

BEAU FIELDING.

He Was the Enigma of English Social Life In His Day.

Beau Fielding was a young man of fashion in the reign of William III. His home was sumptuously furnished, his hunters, hacks and racers were of great value, and "he kept a table of princely hospitality." He had no ostensible source of income. All that was known of him was that he was the fifth son of Thomas Wilson, an impoverished gentleman of Leicestershire. Evelyn describes him as a very young man, "civil and good natured, but of no great force of character," and "very sober and of good fame." All attempts to discover his secret were vain. "In his most careless hours of amusement he kept a strict guard over his tongue and left scandal to conjecture what it pleased."

He redeemed his father's estate and portioned off his sisters and when remonstrated with on his extravagance replied that, however long his life should last, he would always have enough to live in the same way. Some said it was he who had robbed the Holland mail, for which another man had suffered; others that he depended upon the gambling table, though he never played for large sums. He was the enigma of social life (till his career was cut short by a duel. His adversary was at that time a young man about town like himself, John Law, who afterward became the founder of the famous Mississippi scheme by which half of France was ruined. When the mysterious Beau died he left only a few pounds behind him and not a scrap of evidence to enlighten public curiosity.

MONEY CHANGERS IN THE BIG TEMPLE

David Harum Fever Struck

Officials in the Temple of Justice Yesterday

A plague of David Harum fever struck the surveyor's office in the court house yesterday afternoon. Willard Amos, county commissioner had driven a team of black mules up to the curbing on the west side of the court house and stepped into Surveyor Stewart's office on a little business matter.

"Want to trade those mules off, Willard?" said Stewart.

"Yes," said Amos, "what have you got to swap."

"Give you my block of stock in the Masonic temple."

"That's a go."

And the deal was consummated. William Redman was standing by, looking on and smiling inquired of Stewart.

"What are you going to do with that team of Maids, Lon?"

"Trade 'em off," said Stewart.

"I'll trade you eighty tons of coal for them," Redman continued.

Stewart took out an old envelope and lead pencil, figured a few seconds and replied:

"By George, I'll take you up—the mules are yours."

All the trades were within two minutes and without Stewart moving out of his chair or taking his cigar out of his mouth.

NEW SCHOOL FOR TOWN OF ORANGE

It is Planned to Consolidate the

Three Schools in One New Building

Architects are at work on the specifications for a new four-room school building at Orange. The need of a larger school building has long been felt there and the old school building which contains but two rooms, is not susceptible of addition. Trustee Harry Culbertson has conferred with the school board and it is thought that the new building will be begun in the near future. The purpose is to consolidate the three schools which now exist in the township into one school. It is understood that these arrangements are not yet fully settled upon but that they seem to meet with general approval.

Plank rested his head on one big hand and stared at the clusters of dim blossoms behind her, and after awhile he said, as though thinking aloud:

"Many have taken my friendship for granted and have never offered their own in return. I do not know about Mr. Siward. There is nothing I can do for him, nothing he can do for me. If there is to be friendship between us it will be disinterested, and I would rather have that than anything in the world, I think."

There was a pause, but when Sylvia would have broken it his gesture committed her to silence, with the dignity one might use in checking a persistent child.

"You question my definition of friendship, Miss Landis. I should have let your question pass, however keenly it touched me, had it not also touched him. Now I am going to say some things which lie within the straight and narrow bounds I spoke of. I never knew a man I cared for as much as I care for Mr. Siward. I know why too. He is disinterested. I do not believe he wastes very many thoughts on me. Perhaps he will. I want him to like me if it's possible. But one thing you and I may be sure of—if he does not care to return the friendship I offer him he will never accept anything else from me, though he might give at my request, and that is the sort of a man he is, and that is why he is every inch a man, and so I like him, Miss Landis. Do you wonder?"

She did not reply.

"Do you wonder?" he repeated sharply.

"No," she said.

"Then"—He straightened up, and the silent significance of his waiting attitude was plain enough to her.

But she shook her head impatiently, saying: "I don't know whose dance it is, and I don't care. Please go on. It is—is pleasant. I like Mr. Siward; I like to hear men speak of him as you do. I like you for doing it. If you should ever come to care for my friendship that is the best passport to my loyalty to Mr. Siward."

"No man can truthfully speak otherwise than I have spoken," he said gravely.

"No, not of these things. But you know what is—usually said when his name comes up among men."

"Do you mean about his habits?" he asked simply.

"Yes. Is it not an outrage to drag in that sort of thing? It angers me intensely, Mr. Plank. Why do they do it? Is there a single one among them qualified to criticize Mr. Siward? And, besides, it is not true any more, is it, what was once said of him with—some truth? Is it?"

The dull red blood mantled Plank's heavy visage. The silence grew grim as he did his slow, laborious thinking, the while his eyes, expressionless and almost opaque in the dim light, never left hers until under the unchanging, merciless inspection the mask dropped for an instant from her anxious face, and he saw what he saw.

He was no fool. What he had come to believe she at last had only confirmed. And now the question became simple. Was she worth enlightening? And by what title did she demand his confidence?

"You ask me if it is true any more. You mean about his habits. If I answer you, it is because I cannot be indifferent to what concerns him. But before I answer I ask you this, Would your interest in his fortunes matter to him?"

She waited, head bent, then:

"I don't know, Mr. Plank," very low.

"Did your interest in his fortunes ever concern him?"

"Yes, once."

He looked at her sternly, his jaw squaring until his heavy under lip projected. "Within my definition of friendship, is he your friend?"

"You mean he?"

"No; I mean you. I can answer for him. How is it with you? Do you return what he gives—if there is really friendship between you, or do you take what he offers, offering nothing in return?"

She had turned rather white under the direct impact of the questions. The jarring repetition of his voice itself was like the dull echo of distant blows. Yet it never occurred to her to resent it nor his attitude nor his self-assumed privilege. She did not care. She no longer cared what he said to her or thought about her, nor did she care that her mask had fallen at last.

It was not what he was saying but what her own heart repeated so heavily that drove the color from her face. Not he, but she herself had become the pitiless attorney for the prosecution; not his voice, but the clamoring conscience within her demanded by what right she used the name of friendship to characterize the late relations between her and the man to whom she had denied herself.

Then a bitter impatience swept her and a dawning fear, too, for she had set her foot on the fallen mask, and the impulse rendered her reckless.

"Why don't you speak?" she said.

"Yes, I have a right to know. I care for him as much as you do. Why don't you answer me? I tell you I care for him!"

"Do you?" he said in a dull voice.

"Then help me out, if you can, for I don't know what to do, and if I did I haven't the authority of friendship as my warrant. He is in New York. He did go to the country, and at his home the servants suppose he is still away, but he isn't. He is here alone and sick—sick of his old sickness. I saw him, and"—Plank rested his head on his hand, dropping his eyes—"and he didn't know me. I—I do not think he will remember that he met me or that I spoke. And I could do nothing, absolutely nothing. And I don't know where he is. He will go home after awhile. I call every day to see—see what can be done, but if he were there I would not know what to do. When he does go home I won't know what to say, what to try to do. And that is an answer to your question, Miss Landis. I give it because you say you care for him as I do. Will you advise me what to do, you, who are more entitled than I am to know the truth, because he has given you the friendship which he has as yet not accorded to me?"

But Sylvia, dry eyed, dry lip, could find no voice to answer, and after a little while they rose and moved through the fragrant gloom toward the sparkling lights beyond.

Her voice came back as they entered the brilliant rooms. "I should like to find Grace Ferrall," she said very distinctly. "Please keep the others off, Mr. Plank."

Fleetwood had missed his dance with her, but she scarcely heard his eager complaints. Quarrier, coldly inquiring, confronted them, was passed almost without recognition and left behind motionless, looking after them out of his narrowing, black fringed eyes of a woman.

Then Ferrall came, and, hearing his voice, she raised her colorless face. "Will you take me home with you, Kemp, when you take Grace?" she asked.

"Of course. I don't know where Grace is. Are you in a hurry to go? It's only 4 o'clock."

They were at the entrance to the supper room. Plank drew up a chair for her, and she sank down, dropping her elbows on the small table and resting her face between her fingers.

"Pegged out, Sylvia?" exclaimed Ferrall incredulously. "You? What's the younger set coming to?" and he motioned a servant to fill her glass. But she pushed it aside, with a shiver, and gave Plank a strange look, which he scarcely understood at the moment.

"More caprices. All sorts of 'em on the programme," muttered Ferrall, looking down at her from where he stood beside Plank. "O tempora! O Sylvia! Plank, would you mind hunting up my wife? I'll stay and see that this infant doesn't fall asleep."

But Sylvia shook her head, saying: "Please go, Kemp. I'm a little tired, that's all. When Grace is ready I'll leave with her." And at her gesture Plank seated himself, while Ferrall, shrugging his square shoulders, sauntered off in quest of his wife, stopping a moment at a neighboring table to speak to Agatha Calhoun, who sat there with Captain Voucher, the collar of superb diamonds and aquamarines on her slender throat a pale blaze of splendor.

Plank was hungry, and he said so in his direct fashion. Sylvia nodded and exchanged a smile with Agatha, who turned at the sound of Plank's voice. For awhile, as he ate and drank largely, she made the effort to keep up a desultory conversation, particularly when anybody to whom she owed an explanation hove darkly in sight on the horizon. But Plank's appetite was in proportion to the generous lines on which nature had fashioned him, and she paid less and less attention to convention and a trifle more to the beauty of Agatha's jewels, until the silence at the small table in the corner remained unbroken except by the faint tinkle of silver and crystal and the bubbling hiss of a glass refilled.

Major Belwether, his white, fluffy, chop whiskers brushed rabbit fashion, peeped in at the door, started to tiptoe out again, caught sight of them and came trotting back, beaming rosy effusion. He leaned roguishly over the table, his moist eyes a-twinkle with suppressed mirth, then, bestowing a sprightly glance on Plank, which said very plainly, "I'm up to one of my irrepressible jokes again!" he held up a smooth, white and overmanicured forefinger.

"I was in Tiffany's yesterday," he said, "and I saw a young man in there who didn't see me, and I peeped over his shoulder, and what do you think he was doing?"

She lifted her eyes a little wearily. "I don't know," she said.

"I do," he chuckled. "He was choosing a collar of blue diamonds and aquamarines—te-he—probably to wear himself—te-he! Or perhaps he was going to be married—he-he—he—next winter—ahem—next November—ha-ha! I don't know, I'm sure, what he meant to do with that collar. I only—"

Something in Sylvia's eyes stopped him, and, following their direction, he turned around to find Quarrier standing at his elbow, icy and expressionless.

"Oh," said the aged jester, a little disconcerted, "I'm caught talking out in church, I see! It was only a harmless little fun, Howard."

"Do you mean you saw me?" asked Quarrier, pale as a sheet. "You are in error. I have not been in Tiffany's in months."

Belwether, crestfallen under the white menace of Quarrier's face, nodded and essayed a chuckle without success.

Constantinople Shoemakers.

In Constantinople the shoemakers are all poets. While a customer is having a heel repaired or a shoe relaced the attendant recites extemporized or memorized verses to him. As the language is Arabic or Turkish, the listener rarely knows whether he is hearing a good or bad verse. On the Muski, the Broadway of old Cairo, one can buy the red leather, sharp toed slippers, universally worn in a land where there is rarely any rain, for about 60 cents. They are not worth more, being very flimsy articles in construction. They are not representative of the expert English or American handmade shoe, which is a thing of beauty, of comfort and of enduring utility.—Argonaut.

THE FACE IN ILLNESS.

To the Trained Eye It Quickly Shows a Patient's Condition.

The face is a good index to the state of one's physical being, and from it symptoms of disease can be detected almost before the patient is aware that anything serious is the matter with him. For instance, incomplete closure of the eyelids, rendering the whites of the eyes visible during sleep, is a symptom in all acute and chronic diseases of a severe type. It is also to be observed when rest is unsound from pain wherever seated.

Twitching of the eyelids, associated with the oscillation of the eyelids, or squinting, heralds the visit of convulsions.

Widening of the orifices of the nose, with movements of the nostrils to and fro, points to embarrassed breathing from disease of the lungs or their plural investment.

Contraction of the brows indicates pain in the head, sharpness of the nostrils pain in the chest and a drawn upper lip pain in the abdomen.

To make a general rule, it may be stated that the upper third of the face is altered in expression in affections of the brain and the middle third in the diseases of the organs contained in the abdominal cavity.

Cotton Spinning Feats.

"Sea island cotton is the best kind," said a southerner. "It is finer and silkier than any other cotton in the world. A pound of it can be spun into 4,770 miles of thread. For an experiment once in the English town of Manchester a skilled spinner spun a pound of sea island cotton into a single thread 1,000 miles long. Then for another experiment he took another pound of cotton and spun it into as many hanks as he could get. He got 10,000 hanks in all, and the yarn in each measured 840 yards. Thus, out of a pound of cotton 4,770 miles of yarn was produced. This yarn, though, was too fine to be of any practical utility. Those two experiments made a superb experiment for the cotton of the south."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

No Vulgarity.

"You inherited quite a nice little fortune," said the lawyer.

"Yes," replied the fortunate youth.

"I suppose you will pay a lot of your debts now?"

"I had thought of it, but I concluded to make no change in my manner of living. I don't want to be accused of vulgar display."

Secret of Failure.

The secret of most men's failure is mental dissipation, wandering energies, squandering energies upon a distracting variety of objects instead of condensing them into one.—London Chat.

The average man fools his wife but once—when he marries her.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat

SHAVE AS TRAIN WAITED.

Hurry Call From Traveler Who Didn't Want His Card Game Stopped.

Theodore A. Hoppenjon, the Union depot barber at Kansas City, keeps a private mug for Senator Clark of Montana and various eastern railway officials. He has been called out of bed at night to shave an eccentric patron, but he said the other night that the demands made upon him by R. T. Crane a few nights ago were new and decidedly interesting.

Crane is in the implement business and lives in Chicago. He travels about the country in a private car. On a recent Saturday night the Crane car was attached to the Santa Fe No. 9, in bound. As the train neared Chillicothe, Ill., the implement magnate discovered that he had forgotten his safety razor when he packed for his trip to Los Angeles. Crane had the conductor telegraph the Santa Fe agent at Kansas City to have a barber at the depot for him, says the Kansas City Journal.

The train was late, and it doesn't stop at Kansas City more than ten minutes when on time. Hoppenjon was notified and was in readiness, with his outfit, the latter all ready made up. As the train entered the Union depot at 9:25 the barber swung on the private car and had his patron lathered before the engine was stopped. Crane, sitting in the drawing room of his car, was enjoying a game of solitaire. The cards were spread about the table, and the implement king did not appear to notice the barber's presence. When the lather brush began to tickle his mouth, Crane without looking up inquired:

"Does the game interfere with you?"

When Hoppenjon replied, "I'm here only to shave," Crane placed the next card carefully and went on with the game. The barber finished in five minutes, was paid by a secretary and bowed out of the car.

BURBANK VERSUS UNCLE SAM.

"Wizard of Plants" Insists Spineless Cactus Is Good to Eat.

Publication of a bulletin by the United States department of agriculture on the subject of cacti under the title of "The Tuna as Food For Man," has aroused Luther Burbank to reply to the government "experts" declaration that the spineless cactus cannot be grown on the desert and is not fit food for man, says a San Francisco dispatch. Mr. Burbank says:

"The statement that thornless cacti will not grow in the desert has some foundation in fact, but it is so stated that it is absolutely misleading.

"The cactus originally was spineless. Nature added the spines to the plant for protection when it became a denizen of the desert.

"This variety of cactus contains much more sugar and starch than the wild. It makes a splendid salad, is good for soup and is not bad fried.

"The fruit of the plant makes a delicious jam or preserve. Eaten raw it is considered as good as if not better than bananas or oranges. Twenty tons of fruit can be produced to the acre."

Friends of Burbank bear him out in his statements.

A MILITARY SURPRISE.

President Grant and the "Drummer Boy of Shiloh."

Colonel John L. Clem, the "drummer boy of Shiloh," never attended West Point. In the early part of Grant's first term Clem obtained an audience with the president. "Mr. President," he opened the interview, "I wish to ask you for an order to admit me to West Point." "Why do you not take the examinations?" questioned Grant. "I did, but I failed to pass." "That was unfortunate. How did it happen?" "Why, you see, I was in the war while those other boys of my age were in school."

Clem was barely eighteen then and boyish looking even for his years. He had made his own way to the president and had no political sponsors to back him. "What!" exclaimed the president. "You were in the war?" "Yes, I was in the war four years." And Clem related his experiences. Grant wrote something, which he handed to the young applicant, saying: "Take this to the secretary of war. I guess it will fix you all right."

Clem went back to the secretary of war, who had before received him coldly, and delivered his note. The secretary read it and asked, "Do you know what this is?" "No," replied Clem. "I suppose it is an order to admit me to West Point." "Well, it isn't. It's an order to commission you second lieutenant in the regular army."—Chicago News.

WHICH STORY DO YOU WANT?

The Daily Republican wishes to ascertain which of the following stories is desired for the next serial to be published after the present story, "The Fighting Chance," is finished. The story receiving the most requests will be printed next and the other stories in order of standing. Send us your preference by card, phone or personal call before February 10th. Following is a list of a few of the stories we can secure for publication in the Republican.

The Mystery

By Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams. To the worth of this story there are two substantial tributes—first, that it was run as a serial by the London Sphere, a publication noted for its discrimination in the selection of serials and which rarely uses an American story; second, that "The Mystery" was one of the "good sellers" of 1907. This is a story of mystery and adventure on new lines. The style is graphic and forceful as the "copy" of a skillful reporter of an important news event. The part of the hero, unfolds gradually until he stands revealed as the rarest combination of whimsical humor and cool courage ever presented, perhaps in fiction. The narrative, which conveys the impression of reality, not fiction, is swift and alluring, holding the interest of the reader as with hooks of steel.

His Courtship

By Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid." In the main this story is a record of the adventures of a young Doctor of Philosophy, who conspires to play the humble role of hired hand at Mr. Morningstar's farm boarding house that he may have opportunity for serious and scholarly meditations and avoid the blandishments of fascinating young lady boarders. The resulting complications make a story as rich in humor, as provocative of laughter as any that has been written in recent years. The characters are as interesting as one's intimate friends.

The Flow Woman

By Eleanor Gates, author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl." A story of the winning of the west; of the ways and wiles of the savage Sioux; of brave soldiers and daring frontiersmen; of a stubborn hate coming down from the civil war; of love tender, brave and true. He who reads shall know that a tale of Dakota of thirty years ago may kindle and inspire as much as any story of times remote; that the says of romance are near, not far off. The narrative begins quietly and rises steadily in interest to a climax as absorbing and inspiring as has been presented in any novel or drama, old or new.

Richard the Brazen

By Cyrus Townsend Brady, author of "The Southerner," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc., and Edward Peple, author of "A Broken Rosary," "The Prince Chap," etc. In "Richard the Brazen" we put before the reader a knight errant worthy of the best days of chivalry, though he is of the present, and we find him in the garb of a cowboy. The superb courage with which he rescues from certain death a young woman whom he had never before seen, and the reckless daring with which he risks his reputation in attempt to win this woman under an assumed name, will appeal strongly to every lover of romance and admirer of courage. How Richard prospered in his enterprise under difficulties which would discourage any but the most stout hearted we leave the reader to find out, and a most delightful pastime it will prove.

The King of Diamonds

By Louis Tracy, author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," etc. Gripping the reader fast with its tale of the astounding transformation, in one day, of a ragged London waif into the possessor of incalculable wealth, this story by Louis Tracy measures up fully to the standard of this romancer's other popular tales. In the unfolding of the story he depicts not merely the change in the hero's material circumstances, but the interesting development of his character. The stirring adventures in which Philip Anson became embroiled by reason of his suddenly acquired riches, literally sent to him from heaven, his loyalty to the girl friend of his childhood and his manly devotion with Mr. Tracy's

Red Saunders

By Henry Wallace Phillips. This is the famous story of Red Sanders, big Red, tough Red of the plains and mines. We shall follow this expansive man through his days of toughness and sinfulness up to the great day of his life, the day that shall bring the metamorphosis of Red. This trumpeter will not give the story away by indicating how this transformation shall come about—whether through the remorse or repentance of Red, his conviction of sin, his fear of the damnation of the wicked, his yearning for the peace that passeth understanding, or whether it shall be the love of woman that shall bring this giant to his knees and make him as a little child. The trumpeter will only promise that this conversion of Red shall be one of the most interesting and delicious episodes in all fiction, which the reader will enjoy, and doubtless remember through all the years of his life.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson V.—First Quarter, For Feb. 2, 1908.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John iii, 1-21. Memory Verses, 14-16—Golden Text, John iii, 16—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Copyright, 1907, by American Press Association.]

Four of the great words of the gospel and the epistles of John are life and light and love and believe, the first three referring to God and what He is and the last showing how He and all that He is and has become ours. Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is the living manifestation of this life and light and love, for it is all seen fully in Him, and when we receive Him we become the manifestation of this life and light and love to others. This is the teaching of the Scriptures; but, oh, how believers fall in the manifestation!

Chapter II tells us in the closing verses that while at the Passover many believed in His name when they saw His miracles, yet He did not believe in them because He knew them and knew what was in them.

The word "commit unto" of verse 24 is just the word "believe" of verse 23 and elsewhere, and thus we have in chapter I, 12; II, 24, two definitions of believing which mean to "receive" Him or "commit unto" Him.

According to the revised version, these two chapters are connected thus: "He Himself knew what was in man. Now there was a man." So we have in Nicodemus a sample man and in chapter IV a sample woman. The samples are about as different as they could possibly be, the one being outwardly as good as possible and the other as bad as possible, yet the first "must" be born again, and even such as the last "may" be born again.

This gospel is written that, receiving Jesus Christ as the Son of God, all such may have life through Him, for "He that hath the Son of God hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (chapter xx, 31; I John v, 12). The question of life or death in the Scriptures is not one of existence in the body or out of the body, although that is sometimes referred to, but it is a question of knowing God by being vitally connected with Him or not knowing Him (John xvii, 6; Tit. i, 16). The flesh or carnal mind, however cultured or religious, is enmity against God and never can be changed. There must be a new creation, which comes by a new birth (Rom. viii, 7; II Cor. v, 17) and not by any patching up of the old nature.

Nicodemus was evidently one of the best of men and stood high in the esteem of his fellows, being a ruler among them. He had also a conviction that Jesus was no ordinary man and acknowledged that His works declared that God was with Him in a special manner. It is not learning, but life, that saves, and Jesus, seeing the great need of this man, at once tells him of it. Many in dealing with such a one today would assure him that he was a Christian already and needed nothing but continuance in the things he already knew. Strong emphasis on the necessity of the new birth was never more needed than now, for all who are not saved are condemned, lost, dead in trespasses and sins (verse 18; Luke xix, 10; Eph. ii, 3-5).

All have been stung by the serpent (sin) and are as truly perishing spiritually as the Israelites were physically. They saw in the brazen serpent on the pole the likeness of that which caused their death in the place of death. They did not need to understand it, but they did need to look upon the brazen serpent as they were commanded, and every bitten one who looked lived. In Jesus on the cross we see Him in the likeness of sinful flesh, made sin for us, bearing our sins in His own body. And the soul that believes that God so loved him that He gave His only begotten Son that he should not perish, but have everlasting life, that soul thus receiving Him is not condemned, but has everlasting life and shall never perish. This is the new birth, receiving into us a life that was never there before, even Christ, who is our life.

Nicodemus was a moral, religious, intellectual man, but only a natural man, and therefore talked somewhat foolishly concerning these spiritual things, for to the natural man the things of the Spirit of God are only foolishness (I Cor. ii, 14). That he became enlightened that night or later and became a true child of God and disciple of Jesus we infer from John vii, 50; xix, 39, the only places where he is mentioned except in our lesson.

Being born of water and the Spirit is fully explained by putting four texts together—Jas. i, 18; I Pet. i, 23; Eph. v, 26, and John vi, 63. The expression "the Son of Man which is in heaven" (verse 13) may be placed with i, 18—"the Son which is in the bosom of the Father." While on earth He was in a sense still in heaven, and now at the Father's right hand He is with us all the days. The three double "verily's" of verses 3, 5, 11, emphasizing the necessity of the new birth and of being taught by the Spirit, should receive special attention; also the "must's" of verses 7 and 14 and others to be looked up. Some one has said: "As to my views, I find two facts are always uppermost—my Bible and my Saviour."

my Bible because it reveals my Saviour, and my Saviour because He interprets my Bible." There is nothing reliable concerning things unseen but the Word of God, but that is infallible and forever settled in heaven (Ps. cxix, 89).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Feb. 2, 1908.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—The real heart of Christian Endeavor.—Col. iii, 1-4, 12-23; iv, 1-6. (Consecration meeting. Christian Endeavor day.)

Twenty-seven years ago today the Christian Endeavor movement made its beginning in a "day of small things," but under the blessing of God it has grown until today it is world-wide in its extent and influence. No statistics collected by man and no vision of the human imagination could tell the story of the achievements of these twenty-seven years. Only the records of eternity will be able to reveal the number of souls saved, the number of saved souls vitalized into Christian zeal and activity and the tremendous influence that Christian Endeavor has wielded in extending and deepening the broadest Christian fellowship and heartiest co-operation in Christian activities. What device of man could number the kind deeds done, the kind words spoken, or could recall the visits to the sick, the imprisoned, to the outcast, in the name of Jesus Christ by the millions of young people the world over who have marched under the banner of Christian Endeavor? To attempt the impossible would be absurd. Therefore let us humbly thank God for His goodness and blessing and ascribe to Him all glory and honor for these years of opportunity and achievement.

At such a time our thoughts necessarily turn to some phase of Christian Endeavor, and what more appropriate than that suggested by the topic "The Heart of Christian Endeavor?" For he who would understand the progress of these twenty-seven years and catch new inspiration from the past for the present and future must comprehend the secret source of its power and influence. Nor do we need to look in vain for an answer to such an inquiry. The heart of Christian Endeavor is Jesus Christ. He has been and is today the supreme and central figure from whom Christian Endeavor has received its inspiration and energy. The throb of His heart as He lived among men that He might do them good and as He died upon the cross that He might save them for God and heaven has been the dynamic force in Christian Endeavor from the day of its birth. Who can doubt it? Christian Endeavor was organized for Christ and in and through Christ for His church. The first sentence of the Christian Endeavor pledge reveals the heart of the whole movement—"Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him." There lies its heart, the secret source of its power and its influence, and in no better way can this Christian Endeavor anniversary be celebrated than by the re-consecration of every Christian Endeavorer to Christ.

But sincere consecration to Christ must manifest itself in a Christ life or in the exemplifying of the Christ spirit in our lives. The aim of Christian Endeavor throughout all these years has been to inculcate this spirit of Christ into the hearts of all believers and to inspire its manifestation in their lives. And our aim today should be of a similar character. We should strive more and more to cultivate and to emulate the spirit of Christ, which is a spirit of prayer, of fellowship, of holiness and of service. If we do this we shall be Christian Endeavorers indeed; if we fail in it we may have the name of Endeavorers, but not its heart.

"C. E."

A little thing, but little things tell—just the way the "C. E." was brought out in a notice of the Trinity Reformed society, Philadelphia, which we find on their church calendar. It ended with the little word "Come!"

A Double Acrostic.

We find in the Irish Endeavorer the following interesting unfolding of the meaning of the Christian Endeavor badge written by a Dublin Endeavorer:

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR BADGE should be Backed up with Calvary Experience. (Gal. vi, 15.) Animated by a Crisp Enthusiasm. (Col. iii, 22.) Dominated by Christlike Endurance. (Heb. xii, 3.) Girdled with Constant Enterprise. (I Cor. ix, 24.) Everywhere Combating Evil. (Eph. iv, 27.)

Glass Factory Destroyed.—Gas City, Ind., Jan. 31.—The Diamond window glass factory was destroyed by fire, resulting in a loss estimated at $100,000. The fire originated by the bursting of a big tank filled with molten glass material and located in the center of the factory. The factory had been closed since April, 1907, and preparations had been made to resume work. It was desired to begin blowing glass next Monday and the material was being heated with this object in view.

DIRECT UPON STOMACH

Possibility of Administering Local Treatment to that Organ.

After a series of experiments covering a period of many years, a well-known specialist in stomach disorders discovered that to administer local treatment to the stomach was a possibility.

As a result of his study of the diseases of digestion and nutrition, he prepared a prescription called Mi-o-na stomach tablets that act directly upon the stomach and bowels, increasing their strength and power to digest whatever food is eaten.

Headaches, giddiness, palpitations, heartburn, sleeplessness, flatulence, bad taste in the mouth, irritability, drowsiness, coated tongue and full feeling after eating are results of indigestion and cured by Mi-o-na.

Here's a new walk from a news item in Walter Kaler's St. Paul (Indiana) Telegram this week: "Roy O. Kanouse, while paring a corn on a toe of his left foot with a sharp knife, Saturday evening, let the knife slip and fall, and the blade ran through the large toe of his right foot and stuck in the floor and he is walking 'sort o' fetching' this week as a result."

Every newspaper man has met the fellow who takes more papers than he can read. He is the same fellow who paid twenty-five cents for an almanac, alternately patronized the traveling fakir and mail order houses, wiped his nose on an awning, tried to blow out an electric light, put a nickel in the postoffice expecting the postmaster to appear, wanted to lick the cashier of the bank because he closed at four o'clock and watched the sign over Poe's jewelry store for it to strike, and turned in a fire alarm posting a letter at a fire box. The green goods workers and confidence men will pay a big price for a list of names of those kind of fellows.
